Comrade Mikoyan's Shopping Trip

Everybody is having a guess at why Anastas Mikoyan is currently visiting the United States. To provide a way for Russia to back down from its belligerency over Berlin? To pave the way for a visit to the U.S. by Khrushchev?

Yet another theory is that he is over here shopping. After all, it is pointed out, trade and commerce are Mikoyan's specialties. Too, a 65 per cent increase in consumer goods output is promised in the new Russian seven-year plan. That may call for outside aid.

Experts on Russia estimate that if Mikoyan has brought a shopping list with him it might include machinery to increase production of such items as refrigerators, washing machines, textiles, synthetic fibers and other chemical items.

If this is Mikoyan's purpose, or one of his purposes, it will be interesting to see how far he gets. After all, the West is engaged in a life-or-death struggle with Russia, and any help along this line given the Soviets would allow an equivalent Russian resource to remain in heavy industrial production.

For this same reason it is doubtful that Washington would extend credit to Russia, a possible Soviet prerequisite for any such purchases. Khrushchev got nowhere with a proposal for long term credits, made in one of his letters to President Eisenhower last year.

Finally, Russia has an unfortunate history of buying such goods only to produce copies. leaving the supposed "new market" high and dry. As Secretary of State Dulles said last

"Khrushchev has declared economic warfare on us . . . and now it looks as though the Soviet Union wants to get credit from us so that it can more successfully pursue its economic warfare against us.'

These Days

By George E. Sokolsky

The Silent Weapon

Some months ago, Demaree Bess, one of the more competent editors of "The Saturday Evening Post,"

While inflation has ravaged many countries since World War II, our creeping inflation has been held within comparatively narrow bounds. But Soviet strategists have given notice that they expect our luck to change, partly because of our own indifference to economic matters in general and to inflation in particular; partly because of the Kremlin's planned economic warfare against us."

Actually what has happened is that while our luck has not spoiled. Soviet policy has encountered almost disastrous results in several areas

1. Red China is not unexpectedly more orthodoxly Marxist than Soviet Russia has ever been. The Communist leaders of China found in Marxism an answer to their most pressing problem, namely, how to rid themselves of European superiority. Also there was no such resistance to Marxist ideas among Chinese intellectuals as existed in 'most European countries, including Soviet Russia, because China is not a Christian country and the Chinese intellectual followers of Confucius and his disciples are pragmatists, materialists and atheists and therefore Marx is in no manner repugnant to

Also, neither capitalism nor liberalism ever developed among the Chinese, except spottily in the Treaty Ports, and therefore Marxism represents the antithesis of foreign imperialism and native feudalism. Hence the Red Chinese are in that stage of development which the Bolsheviks in Russia witnessed immediately after the 1917 Revolution and which Lenin abolished when he introduced the New Economic Policy as a retreat from Marxist orthodoxy.

What evolved in the form called Marxism-Leninism-Stalinism was a mishmash of Marxism plus a kind of state capitalism, plus a police state with slave labor. Red China is frightening the Russians, first because the Left Wing deviation of Mao is as dangerous to the concept of the monolithic Soviet Universal State as the Right Wing deviation of Tito. Suppose Communism goes the way of Protestant Christianity and breaks up in 250, more or less, sects, what becomes of the Kremlin control of an Empire? The Communists believed that they had destroyed Western Europe as a political and economic power and that all they needed to deal with is the United States. No matter whether one favors the Common Market or not, this stands to its credit: Adenauer and de Gaulle have produced the will and the capacity to build power jointly. Great Britain has at last shown a capacity for economic recovery. De Gaulle has reduced the Communist Party in France and has established a government that is capable of dealing with Thorez and Duclos, who are, after all, Quislings. Western Europe gives every indication of being able both to take advantage of and to resist Russian economic aggression.

True, in the United States the Russians have discovered the Western Achilles' heel, namely that if Russia needs to bury us, they will find American merchants to sell them shovels and Wall Street bankers to underwrite the transaction. But the Japanese and the Germans knew that long ago and it did not help them. Our allies need not worry about all these businessmen and bankers wining and dining and applauding the Armenian Mikovan who holds out fat contracts like a rug-dealer holds out bargains.

3. The Russians believed that they had the Arabs sewed up, but Nasser is apparently going through the same experience as Chiang Kai-shek did. It may not be remembered that from 1923 to 1927. Chiang Kai-shek was very close to the Russians and was known in China as the Red General. His advisers were Michael Borodin and General Galens-Bluecher. Then Chiang discovered that he was not the master in his own house. He had become a slave to the Russians. His escape from their clutches was most melodramatic. And beginning with the first months of 1927, he began to drive both the Russians and the Communists

Nasser seems to be just about in the position that Chiang was in during Christmas week of 1926-27. He fears the Communist power in Syria as Nehru does in Kerala. In a word, these men are catching on to the Soviet game earlier than the Kremlin expected them to.

Khrushchev faces these failures of policy on the eve of the Twenty-first Communist Congress. He sent fiantly, "money is absolutely no Mikoyan to the United States to gain him a crumb of object." success. Did Mikoyan try hard for Khrushchev?

Mikoyan Exposes Russian Humbug, Hypocricy

By David Lawrence

WASHINGTON - If anything were needed to expose the humbug and hypocrisy of the Moscow government, it has been fully demonstrated in the paradox of Soviet Deputy Premier Anastas Mikoyan's tour of this country. While he openly criticizes the government of the United States and its policies, no American, whether an official or an unofficial visitor, may do likewise inside the so-called "republics" of the Soviet Union.

Already "Tass." the official news agency of the Soviet government, is telling its readers and listeners that the people of the United States do not agree with the American government's policies and that Mikoyan is cer-

Imagine some American official going to Russia and touring that country, making outspoken criticisms of the men in the Kremlin and trying to drive a wedge between the people and their government! The Soviet Union has had some distinguished American visitors. including Senator Hubert Humphrey, one of the leaders of the opposition party in Congress and a high-ranking member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee. But, though he spent eight hours in conference with Premier Khrushchev at the Kremlin, what the Senator said or later wrote in defense of American policies or in criticism of Soviet policies was suppressed by order of the government, in all the newspapers of the Soviet

Such distortions are to be expected in a government-controlled press. When, however, it may be asked of Mr. Mikoyan, will the Soviet Union permit any American to stump Russia and tell them their dictatorship is had and can be overthrown by force whenever the people, by concerted action, decide to do so? If Mr. Mikoyan says it can't be done here either, he may be referred, incongruous though it be, to the decision of the Supreme Court of the United States in the so-called "Yates case." This says it is Constitutional for anybody - even a member of the Communist Party of the Soviet Union - to come to America and preach the gospel of revolution. Painful Feet Can Be A Disabling Handicap Painful feet may result in a disabling handicap. The victim hobbles at a snail's pace, winces with each step, and has a temper fit for neither man nor beast.

Flatfoot from a weakened or broken down metatarsal or longitudinal arch is the most common origin of foot pain. Immediate relief is obtained when the condition is recognized and proper supports are applied to hold up the sagging arches.

Prevention is more rewarding Keep the arches strong through exercise, learn to walk properly, maintain good posture, and wear shoes that support the feet, especially when walking on hard surfaces. These rules hold for many foot conditions.

Congressman Wilbur Mills, also of Arkansas, began pulling wires for Alford. Mills is worried sick that he may be euchred out of Congress in 1960 by Alford's close friend, Governor Faubus. Arkansas will lose one House seat under the next census, and the Faubus-controlled Arkansas Legislature could put the bite on Mills's district.

So Mills laid down an ultimatum that either Alford would be seated or Mills would challenge the seating of three northern Democrats - Adam Clayton Powell, the Congressman from Harlem who is under income tax indictment: William Green, boss of Philadelphia, now on trial in a federal contract fraud case; and Tom Lane of Massachusetts, who served time for income tax eva-

Comrade Mikoyan's Shopping Trip

Everybody is having a guess at why Anastas Mikoyan is currently visiting the United States. To provide a way for Russia to back down from its belligerency over Berlin? To pave the way for a visit to the U.S. by Khrushchev?

Yet another theory is that he is over here shopping. After all, it is pointed out, trade and commerce are Mikoyan's specialties. Too, a 65 per cent increase in consumer goods output is promised in the new Russian seven-year plan. That may call for outside aid.

Experts on Russia estimate that if Mikoyan has brought a shopping list with him it might include machinery to increase production of such items as refrigerators, washing machines, textiles, synthetic fibers and other chemical items.

If this is Mikoyan's purpose, or one of his purposes, it will be interesting to see how far he gets. After all, the West is engaged in a life-or-death struggle with Russia, and any help along this line given the Soviets would allow an equivalent Russian resource to remain in heavy industrial production.

For this same reason it is doubtful that Washington would extend credit to Russia, a possible Soviet prerequisite for any such purchases. Khrushchev got nowhere with a proposal for long term credits, made in one of his letters to President Eisenhower last year.

Finally, Russia has an unfortunate history of buying such goods only to produce copies. leaving the supposed "new market" high and As Secretary of State Dulles said last summer:

"Khrushchev has declared economic warfare on us . . . and now it looks as though the Soviet Union wants to get credit from us so that it can more successfully pursue its economic warfare against us."

These Days

By George E. Sokolsky

The Silent Weapon

Some months ago, Demaree Bess, one of the more competent editors of "The Saturday Evening Post,"

While inflation has ravaged many countries ince World War II, our creeping inflation has been held within comparatively narrow bounds. But Soviet strategists have given notice that they expect our luck to change, partly because of our own indifference to economic matters in general and to inflation in particular; partly because of the Kremlin's planned economic

Actually what has happened is that while our luck has not spoiled. Soviet policy has encountered almost disastrous results in several areas:

1. Red China is not unexpectedly more orthodoxly Marxist than Soviet Russia has ever been. The Communist leaders of China found in Marxism an answer to their most pressing problem, namely, how to rid themselves of European superiority. Also there was no such resistance to Marxist ideas among Chinese intellectuals as existed in 'most European countries, including Soviet Russia, beeause China is not a Christian country and the Chinese intellectual followers of Confucius and his disciples are pragmatists, materialists and atheists and therefore Marx is in no manner repugnant to

Also, neither capitalism nor liberalism ever developed among the Chinese, except spottily in the Treaty Ports, and therefore Marxism represents the antithesis of foreign imperialism and native feudalism. Hence the Red Chinese are in that stage of development which the Bolsheviks in Russia witnessed immediately after the 1917 Revolution and which Lenin abolished when he introduced the New Economic Policy as a retreat from Marxist orthodoxy.

What evolved in the form called Marxism-Leninism-Stalinism was a mishmash of Marxism plus a kind of state capitalism, plus a police state with slave labor. Red China is frightening the Russians, first because the Left Wing deviation of Mao is as dangerous to the concept of the monolithic Soviet Universal State as the Right Wing deviation of Tito. Suppose Communism goes the way of Protestant Christianity and breaks up in 250, more or less, sects, what becomes of the Kremlin control of an Empire?

The Communists believed that they had destroyed Western Europe as a political and economic power and that all they needed to deal with is the United States. No matter whether one favors the Common Market or not, this stands to its credit: Adenauer and de Gaulle have produced the will and the capacity to build power jointly. Great Britain has at last shown a capacity for economic recovery. De Gaulle has reduced the Communist Party in France and has established a government that is capable of dealing with Thorez and Duclos, who are, after all, Quislings. Western Europe gives every indication of being able both to take advantage of and to resist Russian economic aggression.

True, in the United States the Russians have discovered the Western Achilles' heel, namely that if Russia needs to bury us, they will find American merchants to sell them shovels and Wall Street bankers to underwrite the transaction. But the Japanese and the Germans knew that long ago and it did not help them. Our allies need not worry about all these businessmen and bankers wining and dining and applauding the Armenian Mikoyan who holds out fat contracts like a rug-dealer holds out bargains.

3. The Russians believed that they had the Arabs sewed up, but Nasser is apparently going through the same experience as Chiang Kai-shek did. It may not be remembered that from 1923 to 1927, Chiang Kai-shek was very close to the Russians and was known in China as the Red General. His advisers were Michael Borodin and General Galens-Bluecher. Then Chiang discovered that he was not the master in his own house. He had become a slave to the Russians. His escape from their clutches was most melodramatic. And beginning with the first months of 1927, he began to drive both the Russians and the Communists

Nasser seems to be just about in the position that Chiang was in during Christmas week of 1926-27. He fears the Communist power in Syria as Nehru does in Kerala. In a word, these men are catching on to the Soviet game earlier than the Kremlin expected them to.

Khrushchev faces these failures of policy on the eve of the Twenty-first Communist Congress. He sent Mikovan to the United States to gain him a crumb of success. Did Mikoyan try hard for Khrushchev?

were needed to expose the humbug and hypocrisy of the Moscow government, it has been fully demonstrated in the paradox of Soviet Deputy Premier Anastas Mikoyan's tour of this country. While he openly criticizes the government of the United States and its policies, no American, whether an official or an unofficial visitor, may do likewise inside the so-called "republics" of the Soviet Union.

The Soviet Union has had some distinguished American visitors, including Senator Hubert Humphrey, one of the leaders of the opposition party in Congress and a high-ranking member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee. But, though he spent eight. hours in conference with Premier Khrushchev at the Kremlin. what the Senator said or later wrote in defense of American policies or in criticism of Soviet policies was suppressed, by order of the government, in all the newspapers of the Soviet

How can there be mutual trust or the beginnings of a "peaceful co-existence" when the rules that apply inside the Soviet Union are so hostile to the concept of free interchange between peoples? President Eisenhower told newsmen this week that he is in favor of more and more visits by prominent persons from the Soviet Union. But of what avail are these to be if access to the Soviet people is denied by the dictatorship in Moscow? The Columbia Broadcasting System has, for example, been ordered to close its Moscow bureau, and accreditation has been withdrawn for its correspondent by the Soviet government. This was done to express Soviet disapproval of the televising over type found in historical novels. Similarly, a National Broadcasting Company representative Moscow was denied use of broadcast facilities because of some phrasing in one of his broadcasts which the Soviet government didn't like. The Soviets, moreover, spend millions of dol-

Ike Confesses To Newsmen He Was In A Fog About Mikoyan's Motives

WASHINGTON - Three days before President Eisenhower sat down face to face to negotiate with Deputy Premier Mikoyan he was pretty much mystified as to what the Mikoyan visit was all about. Talking privately to some of his National Press Club hosts at luncheon, the President asked what the newspapermen knew about the visit. He frankly confessed that he was stumped and didn't know what was in the Newspapermen replied that the President should know far more about the Mikoyan visit than they; at which point the President asked whether they thought the Deputy Premier would talk honestly and frankly to him.

The President then said he'd followed some of the things Mikoyan had said on his midwestern tour but still couldn't figure out his real motive.

Between then and Saturday. however, Secretary of State Dulles gave the President an intensive coaching on what Mikoyan was likely to say and what Ike should say to him. Ike agreed to be exceedingly cautious, not let his usual natural enthusiasm get the upper hand.

The best expense account I ever saw was a piece of fiction written in 1929 by a cub reporter who later became a sports writer. He was sent by a New York newspaper to a cockfight in Paterson. Cockfights are illegal, and it required a little delicacy to get the story. His plot went something like this:

Ferry and train to Paterson, N.J. Room at Hotel Alexander Hamilton Met guide in bar. He drank a pint, I had coffee 7.10 Dinner for two 6.30 Tickets to cockfight 8.00 Fix for two cops 10.00 Cab to and from cockfight Room for guide He couldn't sleep; accompanied him to speakeasy; he drank whisky; I had cof-13.00 He picked up two girls; steaks for four 12.00 Fix for room clerk 5.00 Breakfast for two 1 80 Ferry and train to New York

Painful Feet Can Be A Disabling Handicap By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

Painful feet may result in a disabling handicap. The victim hobbles at a snail's pace, winces with each step, and has a temper fit for neither man nor beast. Flatfoot from a weakened or broken down metatarsal or longitudinal arch is the most common origin of foot pain. Immediate relief is obtained when the condi-

Other causes of painful feet are bunions, corns, bony growths (exostoses) on top of the foot, arthritis of the joints of the foot, gout, sprain of the ligaments of ankle and foot, fractures, ingrown toe nails, ringworm, and circulatory disturbances.

Corns and calluses present a special problem. They indicate that the weight of the body is not being distributed evenly on the bottom of the foot. The individual is not walking properly. is overweight, has poor posture, or wears shoes that do not fit. In some instances, the foot has

Most of us have developed a painful heel at one time or another. It usually stems from foot strain and relief is obtained by holding the heel in place with adhesive strapping. Bed rest may be needed when discomfort is severe. Now and then procaine or hydrocortisone is injected into the inflamed area to ease distress and promote healing. In some instances, inflammation is caused by a bony spur or by arthritis. What should be done with thick calluses? Some authorities recommend paring or trimming. Others suggest a hands-off policy on the theory that these lesions develop over an area in which pressure is being exerted. In this respect, callus is protecting the area and trimming

B. S. W. writes: I have been taking liver shots and pills but am still weak and tired. Now the doctor wants to give me transfusions. Do you know what's wrong with me? REPLY

You must have a form of anemia that is not responding to iron and liver. This would eliminate iron deficiency and pernicious anemia. If transfusions are needed, you must be bleeding or your blood cells are being destroyed faster than the bone marrow can manufacture them. Ask your physician to explain what is wrong and suggest a consultation if you are not satisfied with the answer.

bald spots on her head but nothing we have tried has proved successful. REPLY

Habits of this nature often stem from some inner need that is not being satisfied. There may be an ungratifying relationship with parents or jealousy at the attention paid a new brother or sister. The little girl you write about should be cuddled when she begins pulling out her hair. You know the old saying about catching more flies with sugar than with vinegar. I assume the girl does not have any irritation of the scalp.

It is due to spasm of the larnyx. Infection may coexist or act as a trigger mechanism but most of the symptoms stem from tightening of the muscles in this area. The nervous child is more likely to develop croup, suggesting that this factor plays a greater role than infection.

Says one of the heroes through his clenched teeth: "Is thet a way to treat a woman?"

Says the jailer through his clenched teeth: "Woman! She's more wildcat than woman."

At this point, Miss Moore picks herself up, flounces her behind at the hero, tosses her mane, and sneers: "I don't need he'p from you." Man, you cain't hardly get dialogue like that no more. 'Rawhide" opens with a wide shot of cows, miles of cows. When the cows get out of the way, we see countryside. There are beautiful shots of country-if you like trees. And if you don't, there were shot of Miss Mooreif you like girls. And if that doesn't appeal, there are all those cows. If you don't like trees, girls, or cows, I don't know that I can he'p you son. In fact, I don't think anything can he'p you.

The whole series will revolve around incidents of a cattle drive from San Antonio to Sedalia, Mo. fluch of the flavor of the series as been distilled from a book called "The Diary of a Cattle Drive" or "I Bin Through Hell"
